Seven Fields Primary School-Newsletter

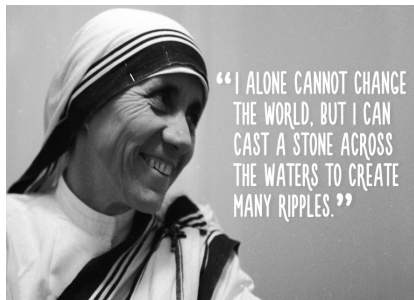

It has been a busy week at school and it is hard to believe that we are already halfway through Term 4. The weather has been interesting this week and I hope Spring will finally be on its way soon. In Assembly this week we were talking about the Rule of Law. We talked a lot about rules - what places have rules, what rules we have in school and out of school, why we have rules and what life would be like without rules. Here at school we have the Magnificent 7. Please ask your child if they can tell you all of the Magnificent 7.

Strike

As you may be aware, the largest teachers union in the country (NEU) has called their members to strike on Wednesday 15th and Thursday 16th March. Our school may well be affected by strike action and staff are under no obligation to let me know if they are striking or not. This means that it may well be likely that I will have to close some classes or the school entirely if I am unable to provide a safe and secure environment for your child. Please be aware then that we may have to shut the school at short notice (which may involve sending children home at the start of the day) and you should make back up or alternative child care arrangements for these days.

We continue to be supported and challenged by the Trust and yesterday we conducted a review of some of our areas of work in school. Subject leaders and senior leaders joined our support and challenge partner (Felix Rayner) and 2 colleagues from the trust to look closely at our work across the school. I am pleased that the initial reports are extremely positive. There is always something to work on however and we will continue to learn and develop in order to provide your children with the best learning experiences that they deserve.

This week was International's Women's day. For years, women have marked the now-annual event on 8 March in different ways, but mostly to build momentum on issues that matter to them, and to inspire change.

Have a great weekend!

G Young

Good afternoon, I am Mr Donnelly and I am a Year 6 teacher. At Seven Fields I look after Science and PSHE as well as working with the school football team. Next week, we will be celebrating British Science Week in school. This will mean that every afternoon, all of the classes will be doing some investigations and experiments to help to build some excitement around Science in the school. Previous Science Weeks have been really good fun and the children have had the chance to practice their Science skills through new experiences. I hope that this year's will be the same! I will be posting some ideas of investigations and experiments that you could try at home next week on Dojo and look forward to seeing some great Science!

Thank you
