

Seven Fields Primary School-Newsletter

Dear Parents/Carers

It has been a frantic week this week with lots of Science investigation activities organised by our Science leader Mr Donnelly. I have been so impressed by the children’s science knowledge and inquisitive nature. I hope they have come home as enthused as our teachers have been throughout the week.

It is lovely to see the children wear something red for red nose day today. This is a charity that we have benefitted from as a school and we hope that we can support other children who are in need by donating our spare change or sending in a text to support the efforts of Comic Relief.

I am delighted to have been able to display our core values inside school this week. Our mission statement states that pupils will become independent confident and resilient learners who know how to keep physically and mentally happy. We are working hard on those last two elements now the children are back in school and hope that as the days brighten and we re-embrace the freedoms we once had in a socially responsible way, we will have helped our children develop their interests and talents.

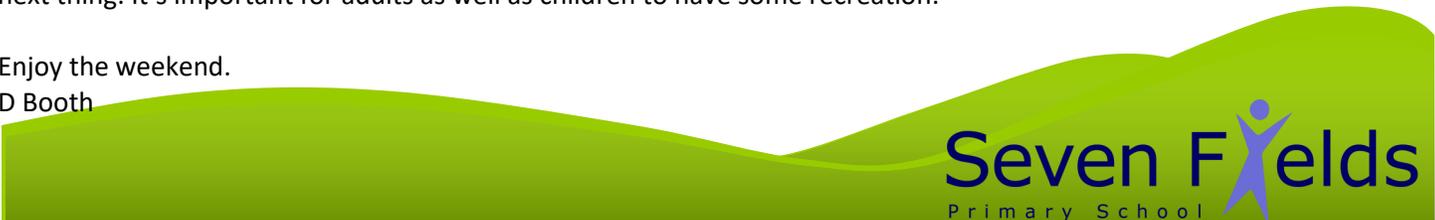

In this week’s assembly, I showed the children the video of “Lucy’s Blue day”. It is a short animated video found here which openly discusses the fact that we all have ups and downs. It’s acknowledgement of this fact, that is important. If we admit how our moods affects our behaviours, we can then start to self-regulate them.

I do hope that the continued good news about Covid-19 and your “re-creation” over the weekend lifts your spirits and enables a sense of positivity amongst your family.

Fun fact

Did you know playtime or recreation time literally means to “re-create” oneself in order to be ready to take on the next thing. It’s important for adults as well as children to have some recreation.

Enjoy the weekend.
